

NEW YORK SYMPHONY WINS M.J. AUDIENCE

Crowd Small but Appreciative Applauds Walter Damrosch's Work.

HOFMANN IS PLEASING

Pianist Responds With Five Encores—Phi Mu Alpha Season a Success.

Walter Damrosch, unlike a temperamental Englishman who once sojourned among us, apparently does not flinch at the enthusiastic American hands which seem to shriek, "We must have more; we must have more."

Mr. Damrosch's baton is always conscious of the audience which will not be left behind, and Mr. Damrosch turns frequently in triumph or in as-stance. It was evident that if he does not consider the audience the thing, he never forgets that it is an active factor in the life of a great orchestral organization.

The "Symphony in G Minor" was warmly received, but with the Prelude to "Lohengrin," Damrosch came into his own. It has been said that when one hears Damrosch one thinks Wagner, so deeply imbued has the leader become with the spirit of that mighty composer. In all his work is to be found the same large energy, bold melodic line, freedom of progression, ardor and amplitude. Damrosch never condescends to emphasize the merely romantic. After the "Lohengrin," the orchestra gave an extra number, "Pizzicato from Coppelia-Delibes."

Josef Hofmann, the "world's greatest living pianist," was recalled so many times that the grateful grew sorrowful and the greedy were ashamed. He gave five encore numbers, including "Romance," Schumann; "Intermezzo," Brahms; "La Campanella," Liszt; "Prelude in G Minor," Rachmaninoff. His final bow was received with a clamor of appreciation.

The concert closed with Grainger's new orchestral settings for some jolly old fiddle tunes, "British Folk songs and Dances."

The Phi Mu Alpha concert series for 1915-16, which closed last night, was a financial and artistic success, the management said today.

The attendance at last night's program, however, was discouraging. Only about 1,000 persons were present, a much smaller number than was expected by the directors of the series. This concert was the only one at which the attendance was lacking.

Dr. H. B. Almstedt, director of the series, is estimating the total attendance and receipts for the whole program. The results will be made known in a few days, but it is practically certain that the Phi Mu Alpha lost nothing.

BRADFORD ON STAND

Physician Accused by Student Detective of Writing Illegal Prescriptions.

Dr. George A. Bradford this afternoon took the stand in his own behalf to answer the charge of writing illegal liquor prescriptions brought against him in the Circuit Court by Prosecuting Attorney W. M. Dinwiddie.

The case, in which many well-known Columbians were witnesses, went to the jury late this afternoon.

The state attempted to show that Doctor Bradford sold liquor prescriptions to D. B. Curtis, a student detective for the young people's branch of the W. C. T. U. Curtis in his testimony said that Doctor Bradford sold him four prescriptions on March 8, 16, 24 and 31 for 50 cents each. He said he went to the Virginia Pharmacy and got the liquor, representing four quarts of whisky. The whisky was offered as evidence.

The defense attempted to prove that Curtis obtained the prescriptions by telling Doctor Bradford that he had rheumatism in his leg and that he wanted the whisky to bathe his leg.

In the audience were many members of the W. C. T. U. who paid careful attention to the testimony. Some of the members took notes of the proceedings.

Other court proceedings today: In the case of John M. Fountain against G. M. Williams and others, a suit on note, the defendants were granted an appeal to the Kansas City Court of Appeals.

Georgia Schowengert was granted a divorce from Leo T. Schowengert and was also awarded the custody of their two children.

Attorneys for Roy Reese and Charles Stockdale, both convicted and sentenced at the last term of court for larceny, made application for paroles. The plea will be heard by the court Friday.

James Henderson and Sylvester Mitchell, both negroes, charged with robbing the pool hall of Izora Jackson, pleaded guilty. Henderson was sentenced to four years and Mitchell two years in the state penitentiary.

Curt Reeves, a negro charged with stealing chickens, was sentenced to sixty days in the county jail.

Ada G. Strode was granted a divorce from Charles H. Strode. The court ordered the defendant to pay $15 a month alimony.

The case of the Columbia Box Company against John Bland was dismissed by the plaintiff.

A judgment of $81.73 was granted to the Cudahy Packing Company in the case against T. H. Woods et al.

The divorce case of William Haney against Oney Haney was taken under advisement.

DAMROSCH DEBITS PARENTS FOR LOW CLASS OF MUSIC

"Why has the American public the reputation of being a frivolous, ragtime appreciating audience?"

As he thought of the question, the keen gray eyes of Walter Damrosch, director of the New York Symphony Orchestra, which gave a concert in the University Auditorium last night, narrowed, and he gave the answer to the question with much vigor and conviction.

"It is the fault of the American parents. They are not particular enough with their children in a musical way. You will find that parents insist that their children become acquainted with the best of literature. They will not allow them to read anything which is trashy or sensational. They teach the children to appreciate the best in paint and art, but at the same time their sons' and daughters' musical tastes are being allowed to run to cheap and vulgar ragtime music.

"I cannot strongly enough urge the parents of American children to teach them to appreciate the classic in music as well as in literature and art and to guide them away from the trashy."

The director of the symphony organization is a big man, physically, and a pleasant one. As he stepped off the train at the Wabash station he stopped to "jolly" some of his men.

"Do I think that the American people are beginning to appreciate music more? Yes. I have been directing orchestras for thirty-one years and am in a position to make this statement authoritatively. But the development of musical appreciation has only begun. Take, for instance, the city of New York, where out of 4,000,000 people there are possibly 100,000 who enjoy, appreciate and understand symphonic music. This leaves 3,900,000 who are in Egyptian darkness, lacking the finer sensibilities of man, particularly that of musical appreciation.

"What the European war will do for the musical world no one can say, as no one knows what its contribution to the development of humanity will be. Music is a harmonic expression of life and of the age in which it is written. Then the music after the war will reflect the changes of life in Europe and the United States."

"Has the war sent European musicians to this country?"

Mr. Damrosch looked at a group of his musicians as he repeated the questions, and they nodded assent.

"Why, you could not hit a ball in any direction in New York without hitting a foreign pianist. They are all over in this country. Many real artists are out of employment because the supply of musicians is greater than the demand for them."

FRANK ALMOST LED TO TROUBLE

Two M. E. Students Borrowed Car; Would Have Been Good Joke If—

Hartley McVey and Frederick Niedermeyer, University students who live in Columbia, were wandering down Broadway last night looking for someone to take them for a motor car ride. In front of the Columbia Theater an automobile belonging to Misses Alice and Lorraine Furtney was parked. McVey and Niedermeyer are friends of the girls. What a good joke to "swipe" the auto and go for a breezy spin around the block. The ride was taken and the car was returned to the curb, up the street from where it had been.

About midnight McVey, who lives in the Dumas Apartments, was awakened by a loud pounding on his door.

"This is the law," a masculine voice told him. "I want McVey for stealing a motor car." No explanations were possible.

Niedermeyer, too, was called out of bed and the two were taken to the police station by Policeman James Fenton.

Telephone explanations were necessary. It developed that the car in front of the theater was the Furtney car, but was driven by the father of the girls, C. W. Furtney, who, when he discovered his car had been removed, notified the police.

Someone had seen McVey and Niedermeyer in the automobile; hence the midnight arrests. The students were released after Mr. Furtney had been told the details of the "theft."
